SERVICE DESCRIPTIONS

O-health provides a range of service options for individuals funded under the NDIS. Our staff assist with exercise interventions and manual therapy to help individuals achieve their health and wellbeing goals. The service options give the NDIS participant flexibility in their decisions regarding exercise programs, assessments and reporting.

Initial Assessment

All NDIS clients are assessed by one of our accredited Exercise Physiologists, Physiotherapists, Osteopaths or Exercise Scientists to determine their current physical and psychological health status, as well as any barriers that need to be considered.

Once the assessment has been completed the therapist develops a treatment plan and an individualised, progressive program in consultation with the client and carer to ensure the plan is appropriate and the program is working towards the client's health and wellness goals.

Report Writing

Initial and Final assessment reports, and progress reports are completed by the treating professional. Initial assessment reports discuss the findings of the Exercise Physiology / Physiotherapy / Osteopathy / Exercise Scientist assessment and identify the direction of the program. It will provide the following:

- Current physiological status of the individual
- Brief description of identified weaknesses
- How the program will positively influence the daily function of the individual
- Realistic goals for the individual to achieve during the outlined program period

Progress reports provide information on the participants:

- Their previous areas of weakness and how these have been improved
- Attendance and progress
- The current physiological status
- The plan for the next program
